

Collabria Google Pay Terms and Conditions

To use your Collabria Mastercard credit card (the “Card”) with this application (the “Application”), you must agree to the following:

I understand that the storage and usage of my Card number (and credentials corresponding to your Card number) and all transactions carried out through the Application using my Card are subject to the agreement governing the use of the Card. I understand that every transaction carried out using my Card through the Application is considered to be an authorized use of my Card, and I am subject to the same liability as if I had signed for each transaction or entered the personal identification number (PIN) for my Card in a payment terminal or any other accessible device.

To prevent any unauthorized use of my Card, I agree to take all necessary precautions to keep my mobile device safe, as well as any passwords or information that would allow someone to use the Application to make a transaction with my Card. If such precautions are not taken, I understand that it will be presumed that I have contributed to the unauthorized use of my Card and assume all liability therefor. If my mobile device is stolen, or if someone else learns of or is suspected to have learned my login information, I understand that I must immediately advise my financial institution.

The Application is owned and developed by a third party not affiliated with Collabria Financial Services Inc. (“Collabria”). Therefore, I understand that Collabria does not set the terms of use of this Application and is not responsible for its operation.